

When offering finance / payment options you may wish to include certain terms and conditions linked to the finance products you offer, the boilers / products that you offer them on or limitations to your offer.

When deciding on these terms and conditions you must keep in mind the legal requirements of terms and conditions – all terms and conditions must be fair and not create an imbalance of rights between you and your customer. They must be worded in plain English and any ambiguity will be seen in favour of the customer.
